

Edward J. Szabo, MD

Family Medicine, as a medical specialty, encompasses a diverse presentation of challenges, as there are multiple facets of every individual's life. I enjoy variety, and being a family doctor provides that diversity in my everyday work.

Not only am I a family doctor, but I am a family man; married with four children, I understand family, children, and aging parents. I can relate to my patients on many different levels. My goal with every patient I see is to make sure they fully understand the condition of their health, as well as making sure they have a "health path". I always try to make my patients feel validated and supported, while providing them options and hope.
