About Me

I believe medicine is both a science and an art, and that no two patients are exactly alike. My goal is to truly listen, understand what matters most to each person, and work together to create a plan that fits their life—not just their diagnosis. I want my patients to leave each visit feeling heard, informed, and confident in the decisions we've made together, in a space that feels comfortable and welcoming.

I was drawn to Primary Care Associates of Appleton because of its genuine commitment to patient-centered care and strong sense of community. After spending years training and living in different parts of the country, returning to Wisconsin feels like coming home. I chose Internal Medicine because it allows me to build meaningful, long-term relationships and support patients through both everyday concerns and more complex health challenges.

Personal

Family is incredibly important to me, and spending time with my wife and son is my favorite part of every day. I'm a lifelong Green Bay Packers fan and enjoy golfing whenever I get the chance. A perfect day for me ends with a walk outside with my wife, son, and dog, relaxing by the fire, and enjoying time together at home.
